Remembering your loved one

The funeral is an important opportunity to say goodbye, but for many families, remembering a loved one continues long afterwards.

Choosing a memorial is a personal decision. Whether you prefer a quiet place to visit, a keepsake to hold close, or a lasting tribute that celebrates a life well lived, there is no right or wrong choice. The most meaningful memorial is one that feels right for you and your family.

Our experienced team is here to guide and support you every step of the way. There's no need to make these decisions immediately, and we're always happy to answer your questions, explain the options available and help you find a memorial that reflects your loved one's life and the memories you cherish.

Ways to Remember

There is no single way to remember someone you love. Every family is different, and the choices you make should reflect what feels most meaningful to you.

Some people find comfort in having a special place to visit. Others prefer to keep their loved one close at home or carry a small reminder with them each day. Many families choose a combination of options, creating a personal tribute that reflects their life.

Whatever feels right for you, our experienced team will take the time to understand your wishes, explain the options available and help you find a memorial that brings comfort to you and your family.

1. Keep your loved one close

Many families choose to keep their loved one's ashes at home in a beautifully crafted urn or decorative casket. This can create a special place for reflection and remembrance within the home. Smaller keepsakes, including memorial jewellery and miniature urns, allow family members to carry a discreet reminder of someone special wherever they go.

2. Create a lasting resting place

Interring ashes provides a permanent place where family and friends can visit, pause and remember. Whether in a cemetery, churchyard, natural burial ground or another meaningful location, a dedicated resting place can become a lasting tribute for generations to come.

3. Celebrate their life

A memorial can be a beautiful way to honour the unique life of someone you love. From elegant garden urns and memorial stones to living tributes such as trees or planting, these lasting reminders create peaceful places to reflect, remember and celebrate treasured memories.

4. Scatter ashes in a meaningful place

Scattering ashes is a personal and symbolic way of saying goodbye. Many families choose a place that held special meaning to their loved one, while others prefer the peaceful surroundings of a garden of remembrance or crematorium grounds. It can be a simple yet deeply meaningful farewell.

5. A combination that feels right

There is no need to choose just one way to remember. Many families decide to scatter some ashes while keeping a small amount in a keepsake or creating a permanent memorial elsewhere. This flexibility allows different family members to remember their loved one in ways that feel most comforting to them.

Urns and Caskets

Many families choose to keep their loved one's ashes at home as a lasting and personal tribute. Our collection of beautifully crafted ash caskets, decorative urns and keepsakes has been carefully selected to provide a dignified way to remember someone special.

Whether displayed in a favourite place within the home or kept somewhere more private, each piece is designed to offer comfort while reflecting the individuality of the person being remembered. If you decide to do so in the future, the ashes can still be interred or scattered whenever the time feels right.

Memory Pins

Sometimes, it is the smallest things that bring the greatest comfort.

Memory pins offer a simple yet meaningful way for family and friends to remember someone special and carry a lasting reminder of the person they love. Worn during the funeral or kept afterwards as a treasured keepsake, they provide a quiet symbol of connection, remembrance and shared support.

For generations, people have worn symbols to honour those they have lost. From flowers and birds to hearts, crosses and other meaningful emblems, these small tokens have long represented love, hope, faith and cherished memories. Today, memory pins continue that tradition, offering families a thoughtful way to celebrate a unique life while bringing people together during a difficult time.

Our collection includes a wide range of carefully chosen designs, allowing you to select a pin that reflects your loved one's personality, interests or beliefs. Whether it's a robin that reminds you of someone special, a favourite flower, a musical symbol or a design that simply feels right, each pin becomes a personal tribute to a life well lived.

Many families choose to give memory pins to relatives and friends alongside an Order of Service or memorial card. Wearing the same pin on the day of the funeral can create a shared sense of togetherness, while keeping it afterwards provides a lasting reminder of the memories, love and support that continue long after the service has ended.

Each pin is beautifully finished in silver plate or enamel and presented in its own elegant drawstring pouch, making it a thoughtful keepsake to treasure for years to come. Memory pins can be ordered alongside your funeral stationery, making it easy to provide one for everyone who wishes to remember and celebrate your loved one.

Whether worn every day, on special anniversaries or simply kept somewhere safe, a memory pin is a small gesture that can carry a lifetime of meaning.

An elegant memento for you,
your family, and your friends.

Each pin comes in an individual, elegant drawstring voile pouch, with a minimum order of ten pins.

Supporting you beyond the funeral

There is no right or wrong way to grieve

The funeral marks an important moment in saying goodbye, but for many people, grief continues long afterwards. While life may begin to return to normal for those around you, your own journey will be unique.

There is no set way to grieve, and there is no timetable to follow. You may experience a wide range of emotions, from sadness and anger to relief, gratitude or even moments of happiness as you remember the life of someone you love. Some days will feel easier than others, and that is completely natural.

Everyone copes with loss in different ways. You may find comfort in talking with family and friends, spending time in places that hold special memories, creating a lasting memorial, or simply taking each day as it comes. Whatever feels right for you is the right approach.

Try to be patient with yourself and allow yourself the time and space you need. Grief is not something to overcome, but something you gradually learn to live alongside, carrying the love and memories of your loved one with you.

Above all, remember that you do not have to face grief alone. Whether you need practical advice, emotional support or simply someone to listen, help is available whenever you feel ready to reach out.

We're here whenever you need us, our support doesn't end with the funeral.

Whether you have questions in the days, weeks or months ahead, our experienced and compassionate team will always be here to help. There is no pressure to make decisions straight away. Many families choose to take time before deciding how they would like to remember their loved one, and we will be here whenever the time feels right.

If you would benefit from additional support, the following organisations provide free advice, guidance and bereavement services.

A final thought

The love you have for someone doesn't end when they are gone, and neither do the memories you share. However you choose to remember your loved one, and wherever your journey takes you, know that you don't have to walk it alone.

Whenever you need advice, guidance or simply someone to talk to about memorial options, your local Lincolnshire Co-op Funeral Home will always be here to support you.
